Susan Eisen creates one-of-a-kind jewelry works of art in colored golds & exotic gemstones inspired by geometric shapes and natural forms found in the Southwest. The rhythmic movements of her earrings and abstract forms of her bracelets create bold excitement for the wearer.

Emmy nominees from television shows including "Black-ish," "Transparent," "American Horror Story," "UnREAL," "The People v. OJ Simpson: An American Crime Story," "Unbreakable Kimmy Schmidt," "Roots," "Project Runway," "Better Call Saul," "Fargo," "Catastrophe," "Downton Abbey," "All the Way," "Veep," "American Crime," "Silicon Valley," and "The Americans," landed a coveted appointment at the StyleLab Styling Event to borrow jewelry from Susan Eisen for the Primetime Emmy Awards and related parties.

Here's a look at some of the pieces favored by stars:

Alexandra Billings (from the nominated show "Transparent") looked stunning in a bracelet featuring over 10-carats of round white and black diamonds, set in 18k white gold and priced at $52,600. This spectacular bauble was reinterpreted from a vintage tennis bracelet. The addition of black and white diamonds gives this timeless look an edgy twist.

Suzanne Cryer (from the nominated show "Silicon Valley") gravitated towards pair of Art Deco clip earrings consisting of over 6-carats of white diamonds, set in platinum and priced at $75,000.

Angela Zhou ("Hell on Wheels") opted to accessorize with a pair of 5-carat round diamond dangle ear climbers from the Couture Collection, set in 18k white gold and price at $48,000.

Adina Porter ("American Horror Story") admired a contemporary pair of dangling earrings priced at $55,100. This elegant design features 8-carats of round and marquise shaped diamonds artfully coupled with rough cut and hand polished pink tourmaline gemstones, set in 14k recycled white gold.

Romina Laino ("Switched at Birth") was enamored by a pair of Art Deco earrings that were modernized with a dramatic drop of chrysoprase. These statement earrings also feature over 5-carats of emeralds and diamonds, set in 14k recycled white gold and priced at $34,500.

Style expert Michael O'Connor who worked with the celebrities to coordinate their red carpet looks says, "Susan Eisen's unique style is not only evident in her Couture Collection but also in the designs that she crafts using vintage jewelry elements and then modernizing them a truly special way."
