El Paso, TX--Susan Eisen Fine Jewelry Watches Art & Appraiser has created an emergency campaign for the victims of the flooding in Texas. To start the fund Susan Eisen donated $1,000.

"It is a tragic occurrence and one that requires financial support from all segments, including the very charitable jewelry industry," Eisen said in an email announcing the fund.

Those who would like donate can send funding directly to the San Antonio Area Foundation-Kerrville Relief Fund or the Community Foundation of the Texas Hill Country-Kerrville Flood Relief Fund.

In addition, Eisen said people can send a donation to the company's new retail store on 251 Shadow Mountain Drive, El Paso, Texas 79912, with a check addressed to them.

"I will be sure to get it to them," she said. "Texas is a beloved state and as retailers, we are obliged to help when help is needed."

Devastating flash floods in the Texas Hill Country have resulted in a death toll exceeding 100, with over 160 people still missing. The flooding was caused by rapid rises in rivers like the Guadalupe, exacerbated by heavy rainfall and a tropical system. Rescue and recovery efforts are ongoing as authorities search for survivors and assess the widespread damage.
